

We partnered with

474

community partners

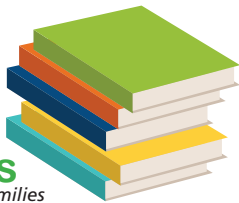

across Canada to deliver creative and quality literacy support to children, youth, and adults. The value these organizations bring to our programs is $966,960 (space, staff, snacks, and supplies).

We distributed 91,720
free books

to children and families to share in the love of reading.

The value of these books is $917,200.

How we connect to make a difference

2,520
volunteers

gave 60,174 hours to Frontier College to help children, youth, and adults improve their literacy skills from coast-to-coast.

The value of their volunteer time is $1,083,132.

Frontier College provided employment for 320 youth

with an investment of 51,294 employment hours.

We served

31,632
participants

in 126 communities across Canada.

This includes learners, children attending Aboriginal Summer Literacy Camps, and visitors to our Reading Tents.

Last summer,

6,648
children

participated in

1,725

days at Aboriginal Summer Literacy Camps in 99 communities across Canada.

Campers spent an average of 51 minutes reading each day—almost four times the amount studies show is needed to reduce summer learning loss.

Literacy is an essential
skill in today's world.
We believe it is a fundamental right.

There are millions of Canadians who are not reaching their full potential.

We depend on donations from individuals, businesses,
service groups, and foundations to carry
on our work.
